Co-Founding Team

Class Question

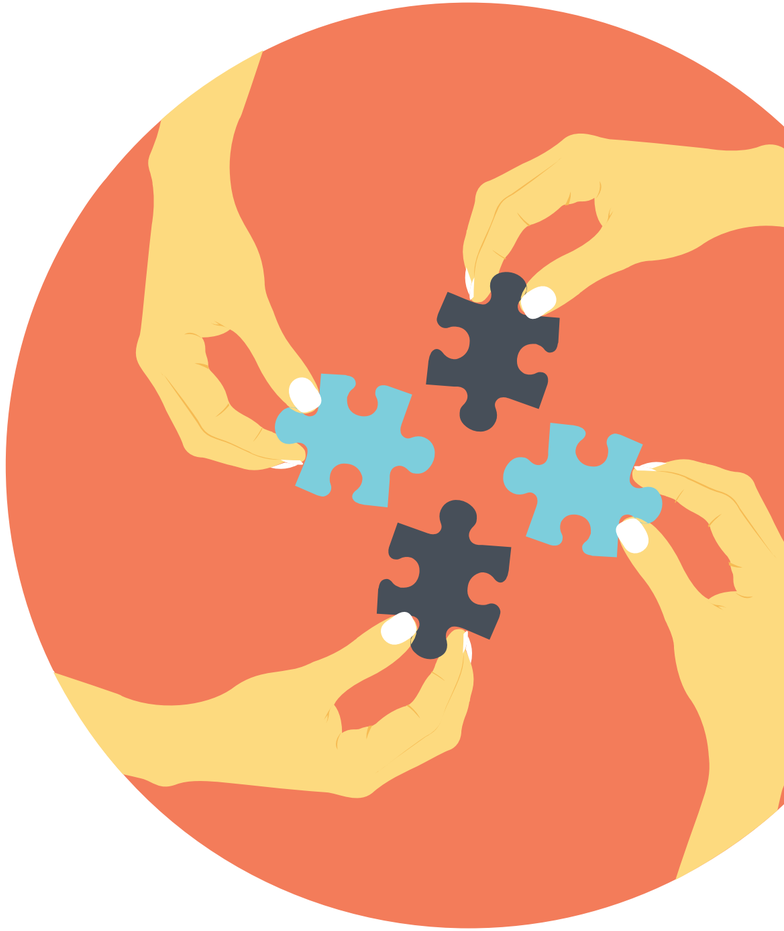

What do you think the key differences are between a Co-Founder & Employee?

Co-Founding Team

Seneca POLYTECHNIC

What are co-founders?

Team members that are a part of the ideation and inception of a start-up. Usually a small group of people that contribute to the creation and early-stages of any business.

Co-Founding Team

Seneca POLYTECHNIC

Co-founders vs Employees

- Co-founders have a vested interest in the company
- Employees are usually compensated with a salary/wage
- Co-founders contribute in more than one way and areas of the business
- Employees usually focus on one particular area
- Co-founders will work beyond regular hours

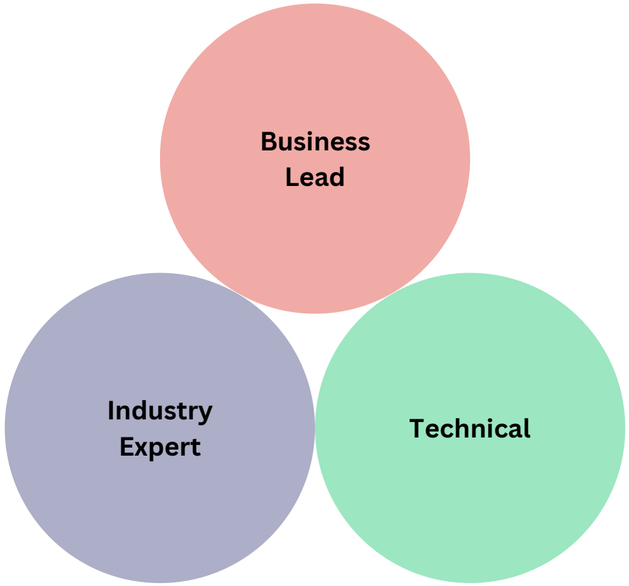

Co-Founding Team

Vetting Process

Start by working on a small-scale project.

How much does the potential candidate contribute?
How well do they contribute?
How do they react in times of conflict?
What type of problem-solving skills do they have?
How much time are they willing to commit?

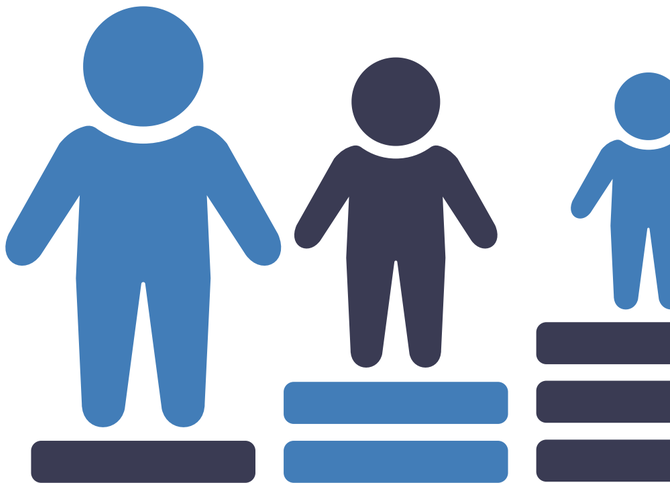

Seneca POLYTECHNIC HELIX

Deciding Equity Split

How do you determine a fair equity split?

There are a few consideration you must have when deciding how to split and distribute equity.

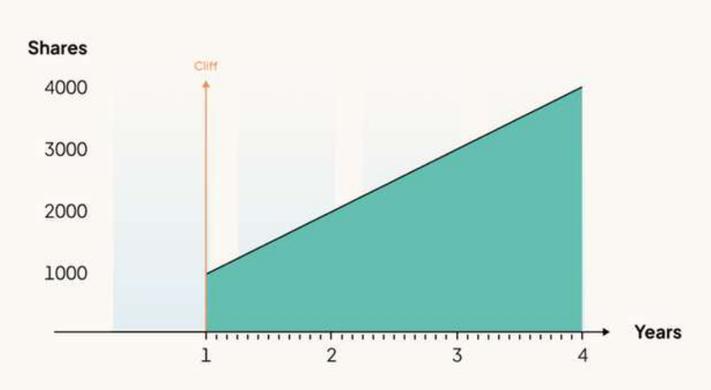

- How much does the role contribute to the company?
- How will their role change over time?
- How will their workload change over time?
- What metrics are you measuring in order to determine if they are meeting their goals?

Vesting Agreement

In the startup ecosystem, a vesting schedule for employee equity is common practice as it encourages long-term commitment.

Vesting is the process of earning equity over time based on milestones. A vesting schedule is set in place to showcase how much equity is distributed over time.

What is an advisory board?

An advisory board consists of experienced individuals that can provide companies insights and knowledge as required. The value derived from an advisory board is usually information, enhanced credibility and connections.

Identifying Advisory Needs

In most cases, you will find advisors as you need them and as you grow your business.

Skills and Qualities of an Effective Advisor:

- Industry experience
- Willingness to commit time
- Problem-solving skills
- Strong network connections.

Organizing Advisors

- Set up an Advisor’s Agreement
  - Outline expectations
  - Time commitment
- Compensation can be recognition, monetary or equity
- Be clear on their role, would you like to set-up regular meetings or flexible, on-call meetings as needed
- Provide monthly stakeholder updates
  - Consider creating a monthly newsletter with updates on your KPIs and areas you need support in.
  - Example on Google Slides
