Pitch Deck Template

The pitch serves as the initial communication tool to convey your idea to potential investors, customers, employees, or partners.

Both the content of your pitch and your presentation play a crucial role in helping individuals decide whether to further explore your idea.

Types of Pitches

	Elevator	Competitive	Investor/Client
Duration	<1 minute	3-5 Minutes	20+ minutes
Purpose	Spark Interest	Excite	Inform
Usage	Everyday	Occasionally	When money is sought
Format	Clear	Structured	Data intensive

Building a Winning Pitch Deck

Branding

Your pitch deck represents you, your team, the company, your mission, vision, everything. A strong brand means consistency, organization, and professionalism. Select your font and color accordingly. Use templates for consistency and inspiration.

Design

The design needs to be clean and easy to follow. Minimize text and use images where it’s possible. The audience should be able to glance over the slide and immediately turn their focus over to the presenter.

Tools & Templates

Use a tool you are comfortable with. This could be Canva, Google Slides, or PowerPoint. Each has its own set of templates. However, there are sites such as Envato Elements that also provide great templates. You can use keywords like slide deck in your search. Make sure your templates contains assets you need such as graphs, charts, etc.

Market Size

Who is your market and how many customers are there? Is it a growing market? A framework that can be used is TAM, SA, and SOM. Total addressable market (TAM) refers to the entire size of the market. Serviceable Addressable Market (SAM) refers to how much of the market you can realistically achieve. Serviceable Obtainable Market (SOM) is how much is accessible to you now. Share how many customers you have now.

Presentation Tips

Vocal Variation: Pitch and Tone

Emphasis: Emphasize different words? Speed and Rhythm: Adjusting your pace can evoke excitement, urgency, or contemplation.

The Power of Silence: A well-placed pause can be more impactful than a thousand words.

Keep an eye on your audience!

You want to keep an eye on your audience’s engagement levels.

Do you see head nods or do you see looks of confusion?

Do they seem bored or actually interested with what you’re saying?

Depending on what you see, you may want to change the pace and/or tone of your presentation.

Keep track of time

Time out your presentation to get a sense of where you are.

Depending on what time it is, you may need to speed up, shorten, or even slow down what you are saying to ensure you get your key points across.

Practice Makes Progress!

Practice in front of a mirror or record yourself to see what you might need to change.

- Are you slouching?
- Are you moving around too much?
- Are you saying uhm too often?
- Are you speaking too fast or too slow?

Pitch in front of different people to see what others understand.

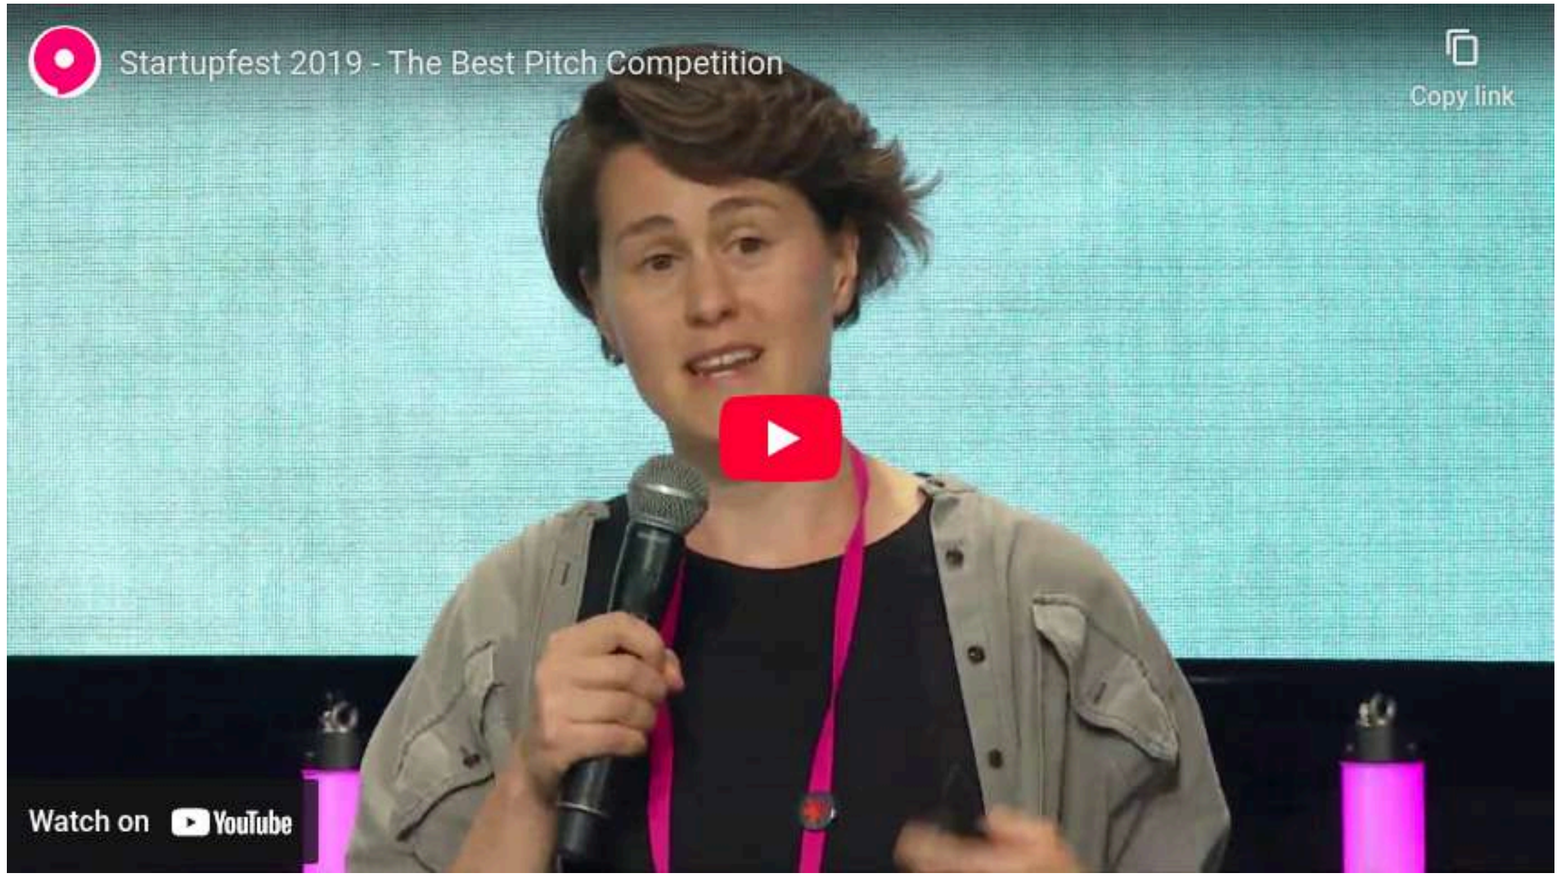

- Are they receptive to what you're saying?
- What kind of questions are they asking you?
- How are you answering their questions?
  - Are your answers too long?
  - Do you need to be more concise?
  - Are you answering too fast?
